This is a primitive recreational trail with natural hazards - wildlife, livestock, weather, and temporary trail conditions that should be approached with caution. Be honest about your physical limitations and abilities. Don't do more than you are able.

Nature lovers and hikers will enjoy this two-mile trail on the historic Glassford Hill, with spectacular views overlooking the Town of Prescott Valley. Glassford Hill is a scenic gem, home to mule deer, pronghorn antelope, eagles, the occasional mountain lion and a host of other wildlife. Picnic tables are placed along the trail for enhanced enjoyment. Parking and entry to the trail is located on Castle Drive.

The Glassford Hill Summit Trail features signage that highlights the area's unique history including culture, vegetation, and volcanic activity. The archeological evidence of ancient Indian villages around Glassford Hill dates back to 1400. Before that, the hill once spurted lava as an active volcano between 10 and 14 million years ago. Colonel William Glassford's heliograph station, situated on the top of 'Bald Mountain,' was part of a sophisticated communication system that covered the majority of Arizona and New Mexico

Trail Ethics for Everyone

Treat all trail users with courtesy. Remove ear buds so that you can hear others.

Respect all signage, gates, and property.

Always keep your pets leashed and under control.

Inform yourself about allowed trail uses, conditions, and trail closures.

Leave wildlife and plants alone.

Stay on the trail to avoid environmental damage.
